NEW QUESTION: 1

A user reports the computer network seems slow. The user's office had one network port available, but the user needed to add more network devices. The user located an older network device that allowed multiple connections. However, the network performance decreased due to collisions. Which of the following explains the cause of this issue?

- A. The user connected a hub.
- B. The user connected a bridge.
- C. The user connected a router.
- D. The user connected a switch.

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION: 2

Which of the following statements best describes transactional functions?

- A. They represent the functionality provided to the user to meet internal data requirements
- B. They are measured primarily for project FPs
- C. They represent the functionality provided to the user to process the data
- D. They indicate the general functionality provided to the user of the application

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION: 3

Identify the two security features incorporated in the Oracle Solaris 11 Cryptographic Framework.

- A. Kernel support for signed antivirus plugins
- B. Signed cryptographic plugins (providers)
- C. Internet protocol security
- D. Layer 5 IP address encryptions
- E. Diffie-Kerberos coaxial key encryption

Answer: A,B

Explanation:

The framework enables providers of cryptographic services to have their services used by many consumers in the Oracle Solaris operating system. Another name for providers is plugins. The framework allows three types of plugins:

*User-level plugins - Shared objects that provide services by using PKCS #11 libraries, such as pkcs11_softtoken.so.1.

*Kernel-level plugins - Kernel modules that provide implementations of cryptographic algorithms in software, such as AES.

Many of the algorithms in the framework are optimized for x86 with the SSE2 instruction set and for SPARC hardware.

*Hardware plugins - Device drivers and their associated hardware accelerators. The Niagara chips, the ncp and n2cp device drivers, are one example. A hardware accelerator offloads expensive cryptographic functions from the operating system. The Sun Crypto Accelerator 6000 board is one example.
