NEW QUESTION: 3

Answer:

Explanation:

Explanation

App1: DataReader

App2: DataReader

App3: DataAdapter

Need to use a DataAdapter since the data could be modified.

Note:

You can use the ADO.NET DataReader to retrieve a read-only, forward-only stream of data from a database.

Results are returned as the query executes, and are stored in the network buffer on the client until you request them using the Read method of the DataReader. Using the DataReader can increase application performance both by retrieving data as soon as it is available, and (by default) storing only one row at a time in memory, reducing system overhead.

A DataAdapter is used to retrieve data from a data source and populate tables within a DataSet. The DataAdapter also resolves changes made to the DataSet back to the data source. The DataAdapter uses the Connection object of the .NET Framework data provider to connect to a data source, and it uses Command objects to retrieve data from and resolve changes to the data source.

NEW QUESTION: 4

Suppose an EJB named HelloWorldBean is deployed as a standalone ejb-jar. Assuming the HelloWorldBean is implemented as follows:

Which HelloWorldBean methods are accessible by another EJB within the same ejb-jar?

- A. All of the public methods declared in HelloWorldBean
- B. All of the methods declared in HelloWorldBean
- C. All of the public methods declared in HelloWorld and all of the methods declared in HelloWorldBean
- D. All of the methods declared in HelloWorld and HelloWorldBean

Answer: A

Explanation:

From JSR318 - Enterprise JavaBeans 3.1, Final Release 4.9.6
Business Methods The business method must be declared as public.
4.9.7 Session Bean's Business Interface If the bean does not expose any other business interfaces (Local, Remote) or No-Interface view, and the bean class implements a single interface, that interface is assumed to be the business interface of the bean. This business interface will be a local interface unless the interface is designated as a remote business interface by use of the Remote annotation on the bean class or interface or by means of the deployment descriptor.
4.9.8 Session Bean's No-Interface View If the bean exposes at least one other client view, the bean designates that it exposes a no-interface view by means of the @LocalBean annotation on the bean class or in the deployment descriptor. All public methods of the bean class and any superclasses are exposed as business methods through the no-interface view
